SUBMIT A COVER IMAGE

We're looking for cover images that are vivid, captivating, and artistic. This is a great way to showcase models, photos, micrographs, etc., that you've created in an international journal with media coverage.

You don't have to have an article in any of our journals to submit a cover image! Images must be of high technical quality (preferably vertical format), tell an interesting geologic story, and must not have recognizable people. The submission must be a high-resolution digital image (at least 300 dpi at 8.5 × 11 inches).

Along with your image, please supply a short caption that explains the geologic interest of the photo. The caption must include a credit line acknowledging the creator of the image. Note that cover photos are not considered as part of an article published in the journal; if a cover image is related to an article in that issue, the only reference to that fact would be in the cover caption.

There is no charge for submitting an image or for having your image chosen to appear on the cover. Submit your striking cover image today!
